

National Republican.

W. J. MURTAGH, Editor and Proprietor.
 Largest Circulation of Any Morning Paper in the District of Columbia.

PUBLISHED EVERY MORNING
 (Sundays excepted)
 BY W. J. MURTAGH.
 Northeast corner of Tenth and D streets, (Opposite Pennsylvania avenue.) and is furnished to subscribers at the rate of $10 per year, in advance.

Mail subscribers, $10 per year; $5 for six months, and $2 for three months, in advance.
 Single copies, 5 cents.

Advertisements, 50 cents per line for the first week, and 25 cents for each subsequent week. Long advertisements, by contract.

THE WEEKLY REPUBLICAN is published every Saturday morning, and is furnished to subscribers at the following rates: One copy one year, $2; three copies one year, $5; six copies one year, $8; single copies, 5 cents.

For all communications, whether on business or for publication, should be addressed to W. J. MURTAGH, Editor, National Republican, Washington, D. C.

Business Hours of the White House.
 During the winter, the President's office is open from 10 o'clock to 12 o'clock, and from 2 o'clock to 4 o'clock, on weekdays, and from 10 o'clock to 12 o'clock on Saturdays.

OUR AGENTS.
 The agents for the NATIONAL REPUBLICAN between now and the 10th of January, 1873, will call upon all indebted to them for purposes of settlement. It is desirable for the past year, and for the year to come, that the new ones should commence with the new year. PATRONS OF THE NATIONAL REPUBLICAN are earnestly requested to give this matter a moment's attention, for it will greatly conduce to the interests and convenience of all concerned.

The New York Herald has a rumor that Mr. Evans is to be Mr. Fish's successor in the Cabinet, but it lacks confirmation.

The era of reform and economy in New York has been inaugurated by the reduction of the corporation attorney's salary from $12,000 to $5,000 per annum.

There have succeeded so well with Jay Gould, is now after Vanderbilt, and wants him to return about $5,000,000. The country will wish it the most intense interest in the undertaking.

WE WOULD NOT ADVISE ANY ONE TO GO to Alaska on the strength of the gold story in another column. We remember all about the canaries and the bananas and Mr. Seward's humming birds.

THE WEEKLY REPUBLICAN.
 The WEEKLY REPUBLICAN is now ready.
 It contains a large amount of interesting miscellaneous matter, besides a full account of the receipts on New Year's day.

Don MICHAEL D'ALBA, the agent of the Cuban patriots in the United States, has been interviewed by a representative of the New York Herald. He believes that if the United States will only recognize the rights of the Cuban people, the triumph of the insurrection is certain.

THE SITUATION IN LOUISIANA
 is becoming rather complicated, and a conflict is expected between the two rival factions.
 We hardly think that the Warmoths will be so foolish as to engage in a struggle in which they are certain to be defeated, with the additional loss, perhaps, of their not very valuable lives.

FOR US BELIEVE, the first time during General Grant's administration the monthly statement of the Treasury Department showed a deficit of a million and a half instead of a surplus of a million and a half. It is a remarkable fact that there was a decline instead of an advance in the gold market in New York when the statement was received in that city.

The London Times evidently looks with apprehension to the prospect of Great Britain islands falling into the possession of the United States, and does not believe that any nation has the right to seize them in a filibustering
 war. But suppose the United States should do something of the kind, what is the Times going to do about it?

The New York Times shows symptoms of returning to its old conservative color and ideas, and comes to the conclusion that there are some things the Government cannot do.
 Its illustrations are nearly all unobjectionable,
 and are calculated to impress the people with a very high degree of its ability to deal with the question. The fact is the Times needs an editor.

GROVER CLEVELAND, of North Carolina, promised in his inaugural speech that when he could not find a good position in his own party to fill in office he should not hesitate to take a man from the opposition if he could find him there. This is correct doctrine and policy. We only hope that he will have the courage to follow it.

The Tribune editors have come to the conclusion that "political controversies hereafter should be conducted on more Christian principles than have heretofore prevailed."
 It is a pity that Mr. Greeley neglected to
 "train his young men" in these ideas before he passed away, so that they might, in the late campaign, have practiced a little of the Christian charity they are now preaching.
 We suspect that there is something beneath the lambskins of the Tribune.

The records of the coroner's office of New York show that during the past year there were found dead in one place or another 122 infants; 705 accidental deaths; 30 accidental deaths by drowning; 200 deaths by fire; 1,200 deaths by violence; 57 homicides; and 3 deaths from alchemy; the grand total being 1,471. The preceding year the number of deaths from the same cause was 1,188, and in 1870, 1,200.
 The statistics of infanticide are less in 1872
 than in either of the preceding years, while
 the total number of deaths, criminal and accidental, is greater.

The REPUBLICAN PARTY has now unlimited room in New York State and city, and has never an opportunity for good such as never before possessed. The entire country will steadily watch and scrutinize its action,
 and expect at its hands the fulfillment of the promises made during the campaign. It was the Democratic party of New York that dragged the national organization down into the dust. It should be the aim of its successor to avoid, as much as possible, the example. Gen. Dix, and his associates, contained an admission which is full of encouragement, viz: "The decided expression of popular opinion in the late election was a strong declaration in favor of a marked line of policy." Yes, a policy marked by honesty, and good government. We have no fears that Gen. Dix will not do his best to that end.

EMIGRATION AND THE SOUTH.
 Perhaps the most valuable, certainly the most suggestive, portion of the census reports in their old channels. The South is the population upon which, with attempt,
 and very successfully, to show where our immigrants have settled. The South is almost a blank so far as foreign settlers are concerned,
 the great majority having gone to the north, eastern and western sections. It is, of course, easy to trace the reasons and causes for this. So long as slavery existed in the South the immigrant turned away from it, rather than thought of going there. But the war the inevitable condition of the country, and the complaints that the Southern people, whether justly or not, have been making about oppression, tyranny and poverty, have continued to keep the immigration
 reports in their old channels. The South has at last begun to understand how much she has lost and is turning herself to the discussion of the question of how she shall divert to herself a portion of the steady stream of immigrants who are pouring into the North.

week after week and year after year, by the hundred thousand, and the millions of the South, and North Carolina, and Texas and other States are revolving plans on the subject. We hope they may succeed, but we doubt that they will be able to make any headway in this direction for long time to come. To do so, there must first of all, be an entire revolution in the tone of Southern society. The idea that one man is a better citizen, must be rooted out.
 Foreign immigrants will not go to the South to live the wood and draw the water for a class of gentlemen who believe in chivalry and think that the laboring man was made for their special use and benefit. The foreign laborer is not a better citizen, and he is not to be despised. He is a man, and he has enough of that at home, and naturally does not want to repeat the experience of the Southern States. This Southern barometer is a better citizen, and he is not to be despised.
 Foreign immigrants will not go to the South to
 live the wood and draw the water for a class
 of gentlemen who believe in chivalry and
 think that the laboring man was made for
 their special use and benefit. The foreign
 laborer is not a better citizen, and he is not
 to be despised. He is a man, and he has
 enough of that at home, and naturally
 does not want to repeat the experience of
 the Southern States. This Southern barometer
 is a better citizen, and he is not to be despised.

Our Two Lives.
 We all have two lives—a life of action and a life of afterthought. The man who is good and true in his life of action, and who is good and true in his life of afterthought, is a man of good account; but he is a man of good account only in his life of action. His life of afterthought is only a life of afterthought.
 The man who is good and true in his life of action, and who is good and true in his life
 of afterthought, is a man of good account; but he is a man of good account only in his life of action. His life of afterthought is only a life of afterthought.

EXPLANATIONS.
 The newspapers are just now full of explanations of one sort or another. Frank Blair, Jr., is explaining his position and his course. Mr. Seward is explaining his course. Mr. Seward is explaining his course.
 Mr. Seward is explaining his course.

SENATOR CARPENTER ON THE LATE CAMPAIGN.
 We alluded yesterday morning to a dinner given by a few of the Senators of the Michigan, Wisconsin, printing in connection therewith the inability to be present. Mr.
 Carpenter made one of his eloquent speeches,
 and on topics which concerned much the entire people as the few hundred gentlemen who sat around the board at his entertainments.

His opinion of the great lesson to be derived from the late campaign was the evidence of the increased capacity for self-government of the people of the United States for self-government.
 Thirty years ago a conspiracy, such as that
 that formed against the Republican party in the recent election, would have been impossible.
 It would have been impossible to elect a President who would have been elected by the people of the United States for self-government.

THE WEEKLY REPUBLICAN.
 The WEEKLY REPUBLICAN is now ready.
 It contains a large amount of interesting
 miscellaneous matter, besides a full account
 of the receipts on New Year's day.

Don MICHAEL D'ALBA, the agent of the
 Cuban patriots in the United States, has been
 interviewed by a representative of the New York Herald. He believes that if the United States will only recognize the rights of the Cuban people, the triumph of the insurrection is certain.

THE SITUATION IN LOUISIANA
 is becoming rather complicated, and a conflict
 is expected between the two rival factions.
 We hardly think that the Warmoths will be
 so foolish as to engage in a struggle in which they are certain to be defeated, with the additional loss, perhaps, of their not very valuable
 lives.

FOR US BELIEVE, the first time during General Grant's administration the monthly
 statement of the Treasury Department showed
 a deficit of a million and a half instead of a surplus of a million and a half. It is a remarkable fact that there was a decline
 instead of an advance in the gold market in
 New York when the statement was received in
 that city.

The London Times evidently looks with
 apprehension to the prospect of Great Britain
 islands falling into the possession of the United States, and does not believe that any
 nation has the right to seize them in a filibustering
 war. But suppose the United States
 should do something of the kind, what is the Times going to do about it?

The New York Times shows symptoms of
 returning to its old conservative color and
 ideas, and comes to the conclusion that there
 are some things the Government cannot do.
 Its illustrations are nearly all unobjectionable,
 and are calculated to impress the people with
 a very high degree of its ability to deal with
 the question. The fact is the Times needs an editor.

GROVER CLEVELAND, of North Carolina,
 promised in his inaugural speech that when
 he could not find a good position in his
 own party to fill in office he should not hesitate
 to take a man from the opposition if he could find him there. This is correct doctrine
 and policy. We only hope that he will have
 the courage to follow it.

The Tribune editors have come to the
 conclusion that "political controversies hereafter
 should be conducted on more Christian
 principles than have heretofore prevailed."
 It is a pity that Mr. Greeley neglected to
 "train his young men" in these ideas before
 he passed away, so that they might, in the
 late campaign, have practiced a little of the Christian charity they are now preaching.
 We suspect that there is something beneath
 the lambskins of the Tribune.

The records of the coroner's office of New York show that during the past year there
 were found dead in one place or another 122
 infants; 705 accidental deaths; 30 accidental
 deaths by drowning; 200 deaths by fire; 1,200
 deaths by violence; 57 homicides; and 3 deaths from
 alchemy; the grand total being 1,471. The
 preceding year the number of deaths from the
 same cause was 1,188, and in 1870, 1,200.
 The statistics of infanticide are less in 1872
 than in either of the preceding years, while
 the total number of deaths, criminal and
 accidental, is greater.

The REPUBLICAN PARTY has now unlimited
 room in New York State and city, and has
 never an opportunity for good such as
 never before possessed. The entire country
 will steadily watch and scrutinize its action,
 and expect at its hands the fulfillment of the
 promises made during the campaign. It was
 the Democratic party of New York that
 dragged the national organization down into
 the dust. It should be the aim of its
 successor to avoid, as much as possible,
 the example. Gen. Dix, and his associates,
 contained an admission which is full of
 encouragement, viz: "The decided expression
 of popular opinion in the late election was a strong declaration in favor of a marked line
 of policy." Yes, a policy marked by honesty,
 and good government. We have no fears
 that Gen. Dix will not do his best to
 that end.

EMIGRATION AND THE SOUTH.
 Perhaps the most valuable, certainly the
 most suggestive, portion of the census
 reports in their old channels. The South
 is the population upon which, with attempt,
 and very successfully, to show where our
 immigrants have settled. The South is almost
 a blank so far as foreign settlers are concerned,
 the great majority having gone to the north,
 eastern and western sections. It is, of
 course, easy to trace the reasons and causes
 for this. So long as slavery existed in the South the immigrant turned away from it,
 rather than thought of going there. But
 the war the inevitable condition of the country,
 and the complaints that the Southern
 people, whether justly or not, have been
 making about oppression, tyranny and poverty,
 have continued to keep the immigration
 reports in their old channels. The South
 has at last begun to understand how much
 she has lost and is turning herself to the
 discussion of the question of how she shall
 divert to herself a portion of the steady
 stream of immigrants who are pouring into the North.

seems to have increased his desire to secure the will of the people who have shown such confidence in him.
 The value of his speech was devoted mainly to a consideration of the amendments to the Constitution, the enlargement of them of the sphere of the General Government, and to a defense of the Administration of the Louisiana case. The amendment which has intervened will, in a short time, pass away, and, after a little practice, everything will become adjusted into one harmonious system, in which Federal and State jurisdiction will be duly respected, and the powers of each be exercised without conflict with the other. There was one portion of his speech which will commend itself to the approval of the majority of the people, namely, that in which he proposed the case of the Cuban patriots, and spoke eloquent words in favor of according them full rights. We present it in another column.

Our Two Lives.
 We all have two lives—a life of action and
 a life of afterthought. The man who is good
 and true in his life of action, and who is good
 and true in his life of afterthought, is a man
 of good account; but he is a man of good
 account only in his life of action. His life of afterthought is only a life of afterthought.
 The man who is good and true in his life of
 action, and who is good and true in his life
 of afterthought, is a man of good account;
 but he is a man of good account only in his
 life of action. His life of afterthought is
 only a life of afterthought.

EXPLANATIONS.
 The newspapers are just now full of
 explanations of one sort or another. Frank Blair, Jr., is explaining his position and
 his course. Mr. Seward is explaining his course. Mr. Seward is explaining his course.
 Mr. Seward is explaining his course.

SENATOR CARPENTER ON THE LATE
 CAMPAIGN.
 We alluded yesterday morning to a dinner
 given by a few of the Senators of the Michigan, Wisconsin, printing in connection
 therewith the inability to be present. Mr.
 Carpenter made one of his eloquent speeches,
 and on topics which concerned much the
 entire people as the few hundred gentlemen
 who sat around the board at his entertainments.

His opinion of the great lesson to be derived
 from the late campaign was the evidence
 of the increased capacity for self-government
 of the people of the United States for self-government.
 Thirty years ago a conspiracy, such as that
 that formed against the Republican party in
 the recent election, would have been impossible.
 It would have been impossible to elect a President who would have been elected by the people of the United States for self-government.

THE WEEKLY REPUBLICAN.
 The WEEKLY REPUBLICAN is now ready.
 It contains a large amount of interesting
 miscellaneous matter, besides a full account
 of the receipts on New Year's day.

Don MICHAEL D'ALBA, the agent of the
 Cuban patriots in the United States, has been
 interviewed by a representative of the New York Herald. He believes that if the United States will only recognize the rights of the Cuban people, the triumph of the insurrection is certain.

THE SITUATION IN LOUISIANA
 is becoming rather complicated, and a conflict
 is expected between the two rival factions.
 We hardly think that the Warmoths will be
 so foolish as to engage in a struggle in which they are certain to be defeated, with the additional loss, perhaps, of their not very valuable
 lives.

FOR US BELIEVE, the first time during General Grant's administration the monthly
 statement of the Treasury Department showed
 a deficit of a million and a half instead of a surplus of a million and a half. It is a remarkable fact that there was a decline
 instead of an advance in the gold market in
 New York when the statement was received in
 that city.

The London Times evidently looks with
 apprehension to the prospect of Great Britain
 islands falling into the possession of the United States, and does not believe that any
 nation has the right to seize them in a filibustering
 war. But suppose the United States
 should do something of the kind, what is the Times going to do about it?

The New York Times shows symptoms of
 returning to its old conservative color and
 ideas, and comes to the conclusion that there
 are some things the Government cannot do.
 Its illustrations are nearly all unobjectionable,
 and are calculated to impress the people with
 a very high degree of its ability to deal with
 the question. The fact is the Times needs an editor.

GROVER CLEVELAND, of North Carolina,
 promised in his inaugural speech that when
 he could not find a good position in his
 own party to fill in office he should not hesitate
 to take a man from the opposition if he could find him there. This is correct doctrine
 and policy. We only hope that he will have
 the courage to follow it.

The Tribune editors have come to the
 conclusion that "political controversies hereafter
 should be conducted on more Christian
 principles than have heretofore prevailed."
 It is a pity that Mr. Greeley neglected to
 "train his young men" in these ideas before
 he passed away, so that they might, in the
 late campaign, have practiced a little of the Christian charity they are now preaching.
 We suspect that there is something beneath
 the lambskins of the Tribune.

The records of the coroner's office of New York show that during the past year there
 were found dead in one place or another 122
 infants; 705 accidental deaths; 30 accidental
 deaths by drowning; 200 deaths by fire; 1,200
 deaths by violence; 57 homicides; and 3 deaths from
 alchemy; the grand total being 1,471. The
 preceding year the number of deaths from the
 same cause was 1,188, and in 1870, 1,200.
 The statistics of infanticide are less in 1872
 than in either of the preceding years, while
 the total number of deaths, criminal and
 accidental, is greater.

The REPUBLICAN PARTY has now unlimited
 room in New York State and city, and has
 never an opportunity for good such as
 never before possessed. The entire country
 will steadily watch and scrutinize its action,
 and expect at its hands the fulfillment of the
 promises made during the campaign. It was
 the Democratic party of New York that
 dragged the national organization down into
 the dust. It should be the aim of its
 successor to avoid, as much as possible,
 the example. Gen. Dix, and his associates,
 contained an admission which is full of
 encouragement, viz: "The decided expression
 of popular opinion in the late election was a strong declaration in favor of a marked line
 of policy." Yes, a policy marked by honesty,
 and good government. We have no fears
 that Gen. Dix will not do his best to
 that end.

EMIGRATION AND THE SOUTH.
 Perhaps the most valuable, certainly the
 most suggestive, portion of the census
 reports in their old channels. The South
 is the population upon which, with attempt,
 and very successfully, to show where our
 immigrants have settled. The South is almost
 a blank so far as foreign settlers are concerned,
 the great majority having gone to the north,
 eastern and western sections. It is, of
 course, easy to trace the reasons and causes
 for this. So long as slavery existed in the South the immigrant turned away from it,
 rather than thought of going there. But
 the war the inevitable condition of the country,
 and the complaints that the Southern
 people, whether justly or not, have been
 making about oppression, tyranny and poverty,
 have continued to keep the immigration
 reports in their old channels. The South
 has at last begun to understand how much
 she has lost and is turning herself to the
 discussion of the question of how she shall
 divert to herself a portion of the steady
 stream of immigrants who are pouring into the North.

seems to have increased his desire to secure
 the will of the people who have shown such
 confidence in him.
 The value of his speech was devoted
 mainly to a consideration of the amendments
 to the Constitution, the enlargement of
 them of the sphere of the General Government,
 and to a defense of the Administration
 of the Louisiana case. The amendment
 which has intervened will, in a short time, pass
 away, and, after a little practice, everything
 will become adjusted into one harmonious
 system, in which Federal and State jurisdiction
 will be duly respected, and the powers
 of each be exercised without conflict with the other. There was one portion of his speech
 which will commend itself to the approval
 of the majority of the people, namely, that in
 which he proposed the case of the Cuban
 patriots, and spoke eloquent words in favor
 of according them full rights. We present it
 in another column.

Our Two Lives.
 We all have two lives—a life of action and
 a life of afterthought. The man who is good
 and true in his life of action, and who is good
 and true in his life of afterthought, is a man
 of good account; but he is a man of good
 account only in his life of action. His life of afterthought is only a life of afterthought.
 The man who is good and true in his life of
 action, and who is good and true in his life
 of afterthought, is a man of good account;
 but he is a man of good account only in his
 life of action. His life of afterthought is only a life of afterthought.

EXPLANATIONS.
 The newspapers are just now full of
 explanations of one sort or another. Frank Blair, Jr., is explaining his position and
 his course. Mr. Seward is explaining his course. Mr. Seward is explaining his course.
 Mr. Seward is explaining his course.

SENATOR CARPENTER ON THE LATE
 CAMPAIGN.
 We alluded yesterday morning to a dinner
 given by a few of the Senators of the Michigan, Wisconsin, printing in connection
 therewith the inability to be present. Mr.
 Carpenter made one of his eloquent speeches,
 and on topics which concerned much the
 entire people as the few hundred gentlemen
 who sat around the board at his entertainments.

His opinion of the great lesson to be derived
 from the late campaign was the evidence
 of the increased capacity for self-government
 of the people of the United States for self-government.
 Thirty years ago a conspiracy, such as that
 that formed against the Republican party in
 the recent election, would have been impossible.
 It would have been impossible to elect a President who would have been elected by the people of the United States for self-government.

THE WEEKLY REPUBLICAN.
 The WEEKLY REPUBLICAN is now ready.
 It contains a large amount of interesting
 miscellaneous matter, besides a full account
 of the receipts on New Year's day.

Don MICHAEL D'ALBA, the agent of the
 Cuban patriots in the United States, has been
 interviewed by a representative of the New York Herald. He believes that if the United States will only recognize the rights of the Cuban people, the triumph of the insurrection is certain.

THE SITUATION IN LOUISIANA
 is becoming rather complicated, and a conflict
 is expected between the two rival factions.
 We hardly think that the Warmoths will be
 so foolish as to engage in a struggle in which they are certain to be defeated, with the additional loss, perhaps, of their not very valuable
 lives.

FOR US BELIEVE, the first time during General Grant's administration the monthly
 statement of the Treasury Department showed
 a deficit of a million and a half instead of a surplus of a million and a half. It is a remarkable fact that there was a decline
 instead of an advance in the gold market in
 New York when the statement was received in
 that city.

The London Times evidently looks with
 apprehension to the prospect of Great Britain
 islands falling into the possession of the United States, and does not believe that any
 nation has the right to seize them in a filibustering
 war. But suppose the United States
 should do something of the kind, what is the Times going to do about it?

The New York Times shows symptoms of
 returning to its old conservative color and
 ideas, and comes to the conclusion that there
 are some things the Government cannot do.
 Its illustrations are nearly all unobjectionable,
 and are calculated to impress the people with
 a very high degree of its ability to deal with
 the question. The fact is the Times needs an editor.

GROVER CLEVELAND, of North Carolina,
 promised in his inaugural speech that when
 he could not find a good position in his
 own party to fill in office he should not hesitate
 to take a man from the opposition if he could find him there. This is correct doctrine
 and policy. We only hope that he will have
 the courage to follow it.

The Tribune editors have come to the
 conclusion that "political controversies hereafter
 should be conducted on more Christian
 principles than have heretofore prevailed."
 It is a pity that Mr. Greeley neglected to
 "train his young men" in these ideas before
 he passed away, so that they might, in the
 late campaign, have practiced a little of the Christian charity they are now preaching.
 We suspect that there is something beneath
 the lambskins of the Tribune.

The records of the coroner's office of New York show that during the past year there
 were found dead in one place or another 122
 infants; 705 accidental deaths; 30 accidental
 deaths by drowning; 200 deaths by fire; 1,200
 deaths by violence; 57 homicides; and 3 deaths from
 alchemy; the grand total being 1,471. The
 preceding year the number of deaths from the
 same cause was 1,188, and in 1870, 1,200.
 The statistics of infanticide are less in 1872
 than in either of the preceding years, while
 the total number of deaths, criminal and
 accidental, is greater.

The REPUBLICAN PARTY has now unlimited
 room in New York State and city, and has
 never an opportunity for good such as
 never before possessed. The entire country
 will steadily watch and scrutinize its action,
 and expect at its hands the fulfillment of the
 promises made during the campaign. It was
 the Democratic party of New York that
 dragged the national organization down into
 the dust. It should be the aim of its
 successor to avoid, as much as possible,
 the example. Gen. Dix, and his associates,
 contained an admission which is full of
 encouragement, viz: "The decided expression
 of popular opinion in the late election was a
 strong declaration in favor of a marked line
 of policy." Yes, a policy marked by honesty,
 and good government. We have no fears
 that Gen. Dix will not do his best to
 that end.

EMIGRATION AND THE SOUTH.
 Perhaps the most valuable, certainly the
 most suggestive, portion of the census
 reports in their old channels. The South
 is the population upon which, with attempt,
 and very successfully, to show where our
 immigrants have settled. The South is almost
 a blank so far as foreign settlers are concerned,
 the great majority having gone to the north,
 eastern and western sections. It is, of
 course, easy to trace the reasons and causes
 for this. So long as slavery existed in the South the immigrant turned away from it,
 rather than thought of going there. But
 the war the inevitable condition of the country,
 and the complaints that the Southern
 people, whether justly or not, have been
 making about oppression, tyranny and poverty,
 have continued to keep the immigration
 reports in their old channels. The South
 has at last begun to understand how much
 she has lost and is turning herself to the
 discussion of the question of how she shall
 divert to herself a portion of the steady
 stream of immigrants who are pouring into the North.

seems to have increased his desire to secure
 the will of the people who have shown such
 confidence in him.
 The value of his speech was devoted
 mainly to a consideration of the amendments
 to the Constitution, the enlargement of
 them of the sphere of the General Government,
 and to a defense of the Administration
 of the Louisiana case. The amendment
 which has intervened will, in a short time, pass
 away, and, after a little practice, everything
 will become adjusted into one harmonious
 system, in which Federal and State jurisdiction
 will be duly respected, and the powers
 of each be exercised without conflict with the other. There was one portion of his speech
 which will commend itself to the approval
 of the majority of the people, namely, that in
 which he proposed the case of the Cuban
 patriots, and spoke eloquent words in favor
 of according them full rights. We present it
 in another column.

Our Two Lives.
 We all have two lives—a life of action and
 a life of afterthought. The man who is good
 and true in his life of action, and who is good
 and true in his life of afterthought, is a man
 of good account; but he is a man of good
 account only in his life of action. His life of afterthought is only a life of afterthought.
 The man who is good and true in his life of
 action, and who is good and true in his life
 of afterthought, is a man of good account;
 but he is a man of good account only in his
 life of action. His life of afterthought is only a life of afterthought.